He Wants the Road.

A prominent property owner and capitalist of Roswell writes the New Mexican concerning the extension of the Santa Fe Central from Torrance to that town as follows: "I am glad to know that the Santa Fe Central railway intends pushing its surveying corps into the field soon. It seems to me that this road will be obliged to extend itself into this country and into the Durango country. I do not care how they do it, if they will only build here. It has been such a serious, inconvenient, expensive and disagreeable task for our people to make the Santa Fe-Albuquerque journey via Trinidad and El Paso that we look forward to a connection with your country more eagerly than we would to the building of a trunk line through our city. We have reached a point where we feel that we must have direct communication with the capital of the territory."

Four old timers took dinner together today at the home of Mr. J. P. Church. They were Jones Taliaferro, Dr. Paden and wife of White Oaks, Andy Robinson and Josh Church of this city. The four men came to this country together in 1880. Dr. and Mrs. Paden were in the city to place their boys in the Military Institute, and Mr. Taliaferro came with his one boy who also enters the Institute. The four old timers getting together had much to talk over and Mrs. Church gave them a good dinner besides.

Some Pygmy Animals.

A species of dwarf elephant used to live on the island of Malta and in various parts of Italy. Judging from the bones which remain, these animals, about the size of a large sheep, were somewhat numerous. A dwarf elephant is a rarity now and no longer forms a distinct species, but is considered rather a freak.

A very beautiful species of pygmy deer is found on the Sunda islands. These little creatures are not much larger than a cat, but have all the points of a "well bred" deer.

Among horses Shetland ponies are the pygmies. The ordinary musk of central Africa is a pygmy, or dwarf, of only about twenty inches in height at the shoulder and three feet in length.

Making Sure of Him.

"I think," said the thoughtful mother, "that you ought to object to young Brown paying so much attention to our daughter."

"Why?" demanded the thoughtless father. "He impresses me very favorably."

"That's just it," returned the thoughtful mother. "We must do something to make his ambitious mother think we regard ourselves a little above them socially if we are to make sure of him."

A Hint to Go.

"I have something to tell you before I go," he finally said.

"Is it a long story?" she hastily asked.

"No; it is a very short one."

"Then I think you will just have time," she sweetly said.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her References.
